

2007 Quality Sourcebook

Six Sigma

Incredible as it seems, Six Sigma is now 20 years old—and it's still going strong. The methodology can save companies huge sums of money by eliminating waste, redefining processes and reducing defects. Long a staple of quality improvement at manufacturing plants, Six Sigma is now penetrating sectors such as health care, government agencies, service organizations and many more.

This section contains the Six Sigma Services Directory and the Six Sigma Software Directory. Taken together, these two directories can help you implement, maintain and improve your organization's Six Sigma efforts. Embracing the Six Sigma path often leads to stunning improvement in a very short period of time. The companies found on the following pages can help you get there.

These directories are not meant to endorse or exclude any particular organization. Rather, they should be used as the starting point in the data-gathering process. Readers are encouraged to contact the companies directly for more information and to ask for—and check—references. Further information, including company descriptions (if provided to us) can be found on our Web site at www.qualitydigest.com/directories.

Glossary

Black Belt—highly skilled Six Sigma expert who has completed four weeks or more of classroom learning and, over the course of four to six months, demonstrated mastery of the tools through the completion of a major process improvement project

DFSS—design for Six Sigma; methodology using tools, training and measurements to enable the design of products and processes that meet customer expectations and can be produced at Six Sigma quality levels

DMAIC—define, measure, analyze, improve and control; a systematic, closed-loop process for continual improvement that eliminates unproductive steps, focuses on new measurements and applies technology for improvement

Green Belt—person with working knowledge of Six Sigma methodology and tools who has completed at least two weeks of training and a project to drive beneficial business results

Lean Expert—person who has completed four weeks of lean training and one or more projects that have demonstrated significant, auditable business results and the appropriate application of Six Sigma and lean tools

Lean Master—person highly skilled in implementing lean principles and lean tools in diverse business environments; certification involves one year of intense study and practice in advanced lean tools, teaching and mentoring

Lean Six Sigma—technique that combines lean theory, such as just-in-time inventory and the 5S system, with Six Sigma processes such as DMAIC and defect reduction

Master Black Belt—Six Sigma expert most highly skilled in the methodologies of variation reduction; after a year-long project-based certification program, Master Black Belts train and mentor Black Belts, help select and lead high-value projects, maintain the integrity of measurements, and develop and revise Six Sigma learning materials

Yellow Belt—person with a general knowledge of Six Sigma; this designation often leads to further training in the methodology

Find and Seize Great Opportunities!

Seeing David in the Stone searches for answers to three timeless questions:

1. How did some people find and seize the great opportunities of their times?
2. What can we learn from them to help us find and seize great opportunities?
3. How did innovative leaders help organizations find and seize great opportunities?

This book answers the questions from the successes and failures of 70 leaders, including:

Bill Gates • Abraham Lincoln • Leonardo da Vinci
Dwight Eisenhower • Sam Walton • Galileo • Albert Einstein • Thomas Edison • Winston Churchill

"This book distills the wisdom of the ages and presents it as a life-changing potion. It is entertaining, and the messages are unforgettable... one of the few books that changed the reader's life by its insights — it changed mine and will change yours. It's a masterpiece, a legacy for generations to come. Seeing David in the Stone is the must-read book of its era."

—John Marlotti, Past President, Rubbermaid

Co-author Jim Swartz has been a director of lean productivity improvement for a $3 billion corporation. He has also been a plant manager, a physics researcher and a product design manager. Co-author Joe Swartz has consulted with a number of companies in leading them into lean Six Sigma manufacturing and engineering change. He is currently director of business transformation for the St. Francis Hospital and Health Care Centers in Indianapolis.

Sure, he’s got his bow and arrows, but food fuels passions of the heart. And that’s where I come in. I’m in charge of quality on a kitchen appliance line. I’m the reason every oven cooks precisely as set. How? Minitab Statistical Software helps me meet my specs, but there’s more to quality than statistics. Like how Quality Companion helps me with my Six Sigma projects. Now add Minitab’s world-class training plus unbelievable technical support and customer service, and I have an entire suite of products and services that helps me deliver a better oven—not to mention a soufflé that will melt her heart. Visit minitab.com today or call 1.800.448.3555 (US/Canada/Mexico).
